Art Unit: 3728

1) The determination of obviousness-type double patenting for the claims of this application, with respect to potentially over a hundred and fifty patents and pending patent applications, which have conflicting claims with respect to the product being claimed in the present claims, is held in abeyance until such time as there are claims in this case that are otherwise determined to be patentable. This is to avoid a potentially very lengthy Office action and a premature indication of the need for a terminal disclaimer regarding perhaps over one hundred and fifty patents and pending patent applications

2) The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. § 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless --

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3) Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102(b) as being anticipated by Weder (4,733,521). The reference of Weder discloses a potted flower/plant having a cover 12 adhesively attached thereto. See, for example, the description in column 2, lines 6-9 and column 3, lines 28-68.

Although the reference of Weder does not teach Applicant's method in which a cover is placed about the potted flower, including a step of inserting the potted plant/flower into an interior space formed by the cover, Applicant is claiming a product and not a method. The product which is the result of Applicant's method is anticipated by the product disclosed by the reference of Weder since the Weder reference discloses a cover attached by adhesive to the of a potted plant. It is well settled that the patentability of a product ordinarily can not depend on its method of being made. See In re Thorpe, 777 F.2d 695, 227 USPQ 964 (1985).

4) Claims 7-12 and 19-24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102(b) as being anticipated by Crawford (3,962,503). The reference of Crawford discloses a pot of a potted flower arrangement, which has a cover attached thereto by a band or ribbon 6. See, for example, the abstract, col. 3, lines 2-4, and Figures 1 and 7.

Although the reference of Crawford does not teach Applicant's method in which a cover is placed about the potted flower, including a step of inserting the potted flower into an interior space formed by the cover, Applicant is claiming a product and not a method. The product which is the result of Applicant's method is anticipated by the product disclosed by the reference of Crawford since the reference of Crawford discloses a cover attached by ribbon or band to the sides of the pot of a potted plant. It is well settled that the patentability of a product ordinarily can not depend on its method of being made. See In re Thorpe, 777 F.2d 695, 227 USPQ 964 (1985).

5) Claims 13-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102(b) as being anticipated by Sievers (1,868,853). In the reference of Sievers, Figure 1 shows a potted plant having a cover 13 attached to the pot 10 thereof by a tie 14,15.

Although the reference of Sievers does not teach Applicant's method in which a cover is placed about the potted flower, including a step of inserting the potted flower into an interior space formed by the cover, Applicant is claiming a product and not a method. The product which is the result of Applicant's method is anticipated by the product disclosed by the reference of Sievers since the reference of Sievers discloses a cover attached by a tie to the sides of the pot of a potted plant. It is well settled that the patentability of a product ordinarily can not depend on its method of being made. See In re Thorpe, 777 F.2d 695, 227 USPQ 964 (1985).
